NOEL APPLIES FOR BOROUGH TRASH PERMIT

Kenneth F. Noel, Bonneauville has applied to the borough of Gettysburg for a permit to collect garbage in the community, Attorney Ronald J. Hagarman, representing Noel, said today.

The application for a license was made to Burgess Wilbur J. Plank last Friday. Atorney Hagerman said he understood the burgess is planning to put the matter before borough council before granting or denying a license.

Hagarman said Noel decided to seek permission to collect garbage here as a result of requests from a number of business places in Gettysburg. The Baltimore St. attorney said that Noel has been receiving from three to five calls per day for some months asking him to collect here.

However the major request was made after a meeting of local businessmen who promised Noel wholehearted support if he would begin local collections.

Noel and his father, who owned the business previously, have been collecting debris for 20 years and now serve "one third of the county," Attorney Hagarman said. Mc-Sherrystown, Littlestown, Conewago, Union and Mt. Pleasant Twp. are principal areas in which the company operates. They charge 35 cents per week to private homes.

GIRL SCOUTS ON ALL-DAY HIKE EVENT

The Girl Scouts of Troop 12 enjoyed an all-day hike on Saturday to Basehoar's Woods. The activity was a requirement toward earning the outdoor camper badge. Sally Busbey, Joyce Hymiller and Suzanne Weaver were in charge of games, dancing and the campfire. Each girl took her own lunch and there was a cookout for the evening meal. Loretta Bevenour assisted the leader, Miss Mary Rita Redding, and troop aide. Other Scouts participating in addition to the named committee were: Hope Sentz, Nancy Harner, Alice Redding, Faith Redding, Syndia Bunty, Sandra Kuhns, Anna Louise Krichten and Roberta

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (AP)-Sixyear-old Thressia Ann Blazina of Lamar was playing with a group of children Tuesday night while her father was helping a friend repair his house at Salona R. 1.

'57 Ford Custom 2-door, "6," stick The children were behind the house while George Blazina and Lynn Hull worked at the front. Somehow, the cover of an old well was dislodged and Thressia fell in. The other children ran and '56 Ford 4-door, "8," Fordomatic told the adults.

Firemen, summoned immediately, lowered Blazina into the well but he was unable to reach his '55 Ford Custom 2-door, "8," stick daughter. The child's lifeless form was finally pulled up with grappling equipment.

Artificial respiration by the mouth-to-mouth method was tried. But the girl was pronounced dead '54 Chevrolet Bel Air 2-door Pow- by a physician a short time later.

The Associated Press We're all aware of the photo back over the lens or replace the film slide in the holder when the shooting starts. They're responsible for pouring hypo in the developer tray and setting back the darkroom timer so it rever rings at the vital time.

But all gremlins aren't the ruinous type. There must be a few whose sole business it is to atone for the mischief caused by the majority. They're the ones who turn an occasional double exposure into an unusual accidental masterpiece. Or sometimes they'll set the focus slightly off or shake the camera a wee bit so that the photograph, instead of being spoiled, is somehow magically enhanced by a spiritual mood or Now and then there's discom- feeling of movement that would have been difficult to anticipate.

Good Deed Thank goodness one of these good deed gremlins was on hand when I developed some negatives recently. I had loaded a dozen 4 x 5 holders, in total darkness of For Lost Gloves course, and put them safely in the developer tank. The timer bell DES MOINES (AP) - A Des rang and I transferred them for Moines woman made a number of a quick rinse in the running water purchases at a variety store. Negative Ruined

Of course I realized the negative was probably ruined. It had remained in the developer four to five minutes longer than the others and had probably been struck by light when the light flashed on. But I played it safe and went through the regular motions of rinsing and fixing.

Once more, at the end of three minutes, I turned on the light for a look. To my surprise-and with the gremlin's assistance-the errant negative had become more interesting. Through partial solarization, the highlight portions were intensified and were bordered by an artistic thin black edge. The deepest shadows had disappeared and merged with the background. Since the subject matter was a magician and his pretty assistants (who disappeared at times in the magician's act) the photograph turned out to be an appropriate

Can Be Planned

We've all seen many effective solarized pictures. Most of them are not the results of helpful gremlins or darkroom accidents. These effects can be planned if a camera fan is interested in obtaining off-beat results. A figure in a light costume against a dark background is the best type of subject matter. Negatives are usually developed for about threefourths normal time, then subjected to a flash of white light before completion of developing. It would be a good idea to shoot half a dozen negatives of the same or similar pose and develop one normally while experimenting with the duplicates. Besides solarizatioon, try reticulation, which is a cracking of the emulsion in an allover pattern which can be interesting. It's the result of a sudden change of temperatures are put in a developer which is unusually high in temperature—about 90 de-grees—and then slapped into a
